Owing to the very large and varied classes of business carried on through this office, it is hoped that all correspondents will refer to the date of the letter written them, and as well to refer to the INITIAL LETTER on the left hand corner of this sheet, which represents the division of the office from which the letter was written. Should you not so refer, you possibly may not be answered, as your business comprises really nine offices in one, and when received here would be, without considerable difficulty, hard to place where it would rightfully belong. - At present, our surplus will not admit of our indulging in oil paintings of this character; we hope though, some of these days, to be so circumstanced. - In the meantime, we will have to ~~be~~ content ^{ourselves} with handsome engravings, or good imitations say of water color. -

Anthony Hyde, Esq.

Secretary Corcoran Gallery of Art
Washington, D.C.

Sir.

Permit me to invite your attention to a rare French lithograph, now on exhibition at Barlow's art gallery, Pennsylvania Avenue, representing the emperor Napoleon the First, surrounded by his favorite marshals. -

The lithograph is a production of French art sixty years ago, and I doubt that there are any copies extant this side of the Atlantic. - The emperor's bust is after the celebrated painting executed by David, in the year 1809. - This splendid original I remember to have seen in the Gallery of the Tuileries on my visit to Paris in July 1847. -

The object of this communication is to express my sincere wish to see this this relic of a heroic past preserved in the Corcoran Art Gallery. - That it is worthy a place therein, every admirer of the French Caesar will admit. -

I am prepared to dispose of the picture if sufficient inducements are offered, and requesting an early reply.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Very respectfully

Your obt. servant
